

How to Read Your Water Bill

Do water bills sometimes feel confusing? You’re not alone! Here’s a simple refresher to help you understand what you’re seeing each month.

Your Monthly Base Rate

For this 2025-2026 fiscal year, the monthly base rate is $26.23 for all water users. This base rate includes up to 1,000 cubic feet of water usage — that equals 7,480 gallons per month!

If you use more than 1,000 cubic feet, additional water overage charges will apply.

How We Track Your Water Use

Every improved lot has a water meter that records how much water flows through your service line. Our water technicians read these meters monthly and input the readings into our billing system, which then calculates your charges automatically.

Understanding Your Water Bill Statement

Your monthly statement includes two separate meter readings:

- Previous Reading:
The total amount of water that has flowed through your meter up to last month’s reading.
- Current Reading:
The total amount of water that has flowed through your meter as of this month’s reading.

Your USAGE is determined by the difference in the reading from last month and the reading from this month

If you have an outstanding balance from the previous month or months, that will show up in the top line of the bill under balance forward.

Current Reading – Previous Reading = Monthly Usage
